The only force stronger than the approaching hurricane was their hidden desire for one another... Beck Carlson is prepping for the approaching storm when a random voice offers to help. Beck is more than surprised. After all, he thought he was alone in the Purple Pelican condos, everyone else having evacuated in the advance of Hurricane Ellen. Instead, a handsome ginger waif, Ford Wilson, pokes his head out of his front door, limping along in a big plastic boot after a recent skateboard accident. Bruised and battered, he's been unable to prep for the hurricane. A native Floridian who's seen his share of storms, Beck takes pity on the sexy skater boy, sharing his own hurricane supplies and showing him the ropes as Ford hunkers down for his first Category 3 storm. After the two part ways for the duration, Beck feels bad, returning with fresh supplies and offering to weather the storm in Ford's condo. A nervous Ford gratefully accepts, locking them both inside for a whirlwind romance as intense as the approaching storm, and just as dangerous... PUBLISHER NOTE: Contemporary Erotic M/M Romance. Christina Engela proudly presents the 2nd volume in a series of horror misadventures in deep space with the crew of the I.S.S. Mercury. In "Dead Center", to repay a debt, Captain Flane accompanies the crew of the cult TV show "Specter Adventures" in a "lock-down" of the most haunted abandoned Terran outpost in the Galaxy, while "Through A Dark Glassy" explores the creepy consequences of placing a paper note reading "WARNING: ABSOLUTELY POSITIVELY DO NOT OPEN" on a crate containing some of the most dangerous haunted items known to humanity - and sending it away via a space courier service - and not in a hypothetical way either. Unfriendly Witnesses: Gender, Theater, and Film in the McCarthy Era examines the experiences of seven prominent women of stage and screen whose lives and careers were damaged by the McCarthy-era "witch hunts" for Communists and Communist sympathizers in the entertainment industry: Judy Holliday, Anne Revere, Lillian Hellman, Dorothy Parker, Margaret Webster, Mady Christians, and Kim Hunter. The effects on women of the anti-Communist crusades that swept the nation between 1947 and 1962

have been largely overlooked by cultural critics and historians, who have instead focused their attention on the men of the period. Author Milly S. Barranger looks at the gender issues inherent in the investigations and at the destructive impact the investigations had on the lives and careers of these seven women—and on American film and theater and culture in general. Issues of gender and politics surface in the women's testimony before the committeemen, labeled "unfriendly" because the women refused to name names. Unfriendly Witnesses redresses the absence of women's histories during this era of modern political history and identifies the enduring strains of McCarthyism in postmillennial America. Barranger recreates the congressional and state hearings that addressed the alleged Communist influence in the entertainment industry and examines in detail the cases of these seven women, including the appearance of actress Judy Holliday before the committee of Senator Pat McCarran, who aimed to limit the immigration of Eastern Europeans; actress Anne Revere and playwright Lillian Hellman, appearing before the House Un-American Activities Committee, sought the protections of the Fifth Amendment with different outcomes; of writer Dorothy Parker, who testified before a New York state legislative committee investigating contributions to "front" groups; and of director Margaret Webster, before Senator Joseph McCarthy's subcommittee, whose aim was the indictment of Senator J. William Fulbright and the U.S. State Department. None escaped subsequent blacklisting, denial of employment, and notations in FBI files that they were threats to national security. Unfriendly Witnesses is enhanced by nine illustrations and extensive excerpts from Red Channels: The Report of Communist Influence in Radio and Television, originally published in 1950 at the height of the Red Scare, and which listed 151 allegedly subversive writers, directors, and performers. Barranger includes the complete entries from Red Channels for the seven women she discusses, which include the "subversive" affiliations that prompted the women's interrogation by the government. After having an accident that killed her boyfriend, Nathan, Gill Menderson's life took a devastating turn. Since her recovery from the hit and run incident, she has been facing threats from an unknown person using a Green Toyota to kill her. She lost her self-esteem, her confidence in her job, and her whole being was gradually drifting apart. Add to that the anxiety of being considered as the reason for her boyfriend's death. The following incidents would be the worst in her life. She was falsely accused of murdering a nurse, was sent to jail, her life put in danger, and her parents' relationship slowly failing. Thanks to her lawyer, John Morton and Detective Baldwin, the person threatening her life was identified. Wishes Could Come True, by Sherridan Johnson, is a web of deceitful events, deaths, and desire, culminating into a surprising return to reality. This book explores the link between autism and eating disorders through testimonies from practitioners, service users and carers. Combining research findings, case studies and first-hand accounts, it provides insights into how individuals on the autism spectrum can be supported towards full recovery from an eating disorder. Edited by the lead Clinical Psychologist at the Maudsley Eating Disorder National Service, informed by their team's research, chapters focus on the unique issues arising when autism and eating disorders coexist. The contributors suggest treatment adaptations from a multi-disciplinary perspective, and touch more broadly on the topic of poor mental health outcomes for autistic individuals, and how these might be improved.
